Philosophy

A majority of children presenting to primary care clinics have a dermatologic complaint, whether primary or secondary. Primary care training programs have traditionally offered little formal dermatology instruction for their residents, and the current era of managed care is mandating that a larger proportion of these diseases be managed by the primary care physician and/or nurse practitioner.

This course, designed for pediatricians, dermatologists, family practitioners, nurses/nurse practitioners and residents, will focus on practical pediatric dermatology with emphasis on correct diagnosis, therapeutic options and clinical pearls.

Lectures this year will cover the recognition, diagnosis and treatment of bacterial skin infections, drug reactions, dermatological disorders in children with skin of color, exanthems, acne vulgaris, hyperhidrosis, atopic dermatitis, moles and melanoma, disorders of hair and nails, skin signs of internal disease and pediatric dermatology pearls. There will be two "Guess the Diagnosis!" lectures, with pediatric dermatology textbooks awarded at the end of the day for the top attendee scorers. The day will conclude with an open "Ask the Pediatric Dermatologist" panel session.

Educational objectives

At the conclusion of the course, participants should be able to:

- Describe therapies for idiopathic hyperhidrosis and hair disorders
- Recognize a variety of drug reactions, as well as skin signs of internal disease and various nail dystrophies
- Decide if a nevus (mole) is benign or merits referral and/or removal, and teach parents about skin cancer prevention and sun protection
- Analyze how to approach acne vulgaris, from prepubertal to adolescent type, and devise a treatment regimen and plan for clinical follow up
- Devise a treatment plan for the patient with atopic dermatitis
- Recognize and treat common bacterial infections
- Diagnose exanthematous disorders, including Gianotti Crosti syndrome, enteroviral infections, parvovirus infections, pityriasis rosea and erythema multiforme
- Recognize conditions in children with skin of color, including post-inflammatory changes, acne keloidalis nuchae, tinea capitis, longitudinal melanonychia, keloids, pseudofolliculitis and vitiligo
