What is the C6?
Collaborative Conversations with Families to Advance the Clinical Care of Children with Medical Complexities (CMC) and Disabilities is a 10-part seminar series that builds on an international prioritization study, completed in 2020, designed to highlight key clinical research questions for the care of children with neurodisability and medical complexity.

The leadership includes complex care pediatricians Dr. Eyal Cohen and Dr. Catherine Diokin from the Hospital for Sick Children (SickKids) in Toronto, Canada and Dr. Rishi Agrawal from Lurie Children's Hospital of Chicago as well as Family Voices representatives Nora Wells, Cara Coleman and Kate Robinson.

Who will be joining C6 seminars?
Family caregivers, youth and friends of CMC are welcome to join along with healthcare professionals, researchers, policy makers and anyone invested in better health outcomes for CMC.

Learning Objectives
1. Discuss a process to prioritize clinical topics for CMC and neurodisability.
2. Present state-of-the-art presentations from national experts on these prioritized topics, including an overview of frameworks for decision-making in the care of these children.
3. Stimulate discussion between family experts, clinicians and others on how to best manage these challenging clinical topics in practice.
